

WEALTHY OIL MAN IS UNDER ARREST

Sam Travis and Local Constable Accused of Gasoline Theft.

A MANY-SIDED CASE

K. A. Hardman Was First Placed in Custody; He Filed Counter Charges.

Charges and counter-charges have been filed by K. A. Hardman, of Kiefer, who with Carl Brown and "Lone" Hill was arrested several days ago on charges of stealing large quantities of gasoline from the Oklahoma Petroleum & Gasoline Co. Hardman yesterday procured the arrest of Constable Charles Oberst and Sam Travis, a millionaire oil man, charging them with grand larceny. Warrants were issued by Judge Crawford of Sapulpa.

The cases of Hardman, Brown and Hill will be heard before Justice of the Peace Lee Daniel today. Hardman claims that Travis and Oberst "willfully feloniously and unlawfully stole 1,050 gallons and 21 drums of gasoline from him at Kiefer on May 15." Hardman has reference to a quantity of gasoline Oberst confiscated at the Hardman plant at Kiefer three days ago and returned to the Oklahoma Petroleum & Gasoline Co. Travis is a member of the firm of Travis & McEwen, who own the Oklahoma company. He engaged in the junk business when he first came to Tulsa several years ago and later became wealthy in the oil business.

Oberst and Travis will give preliminary hearings before Judge Crawford Friday, May 20, at 10 o'clock.

Hardman is a former Tulsa high school student and well known here.

members of the committee quickly followed the return of Mr. Kitchin to the capitol and later he announced that the revenue raising plan would be whipped into shape within two weeks and that the house would begin to consider it immediately after the national conference. It is probable that all of the revenue measures, including provision for preparedness revenues, a tariff commission and the encouragement of the dye stuffs industry, will be included in an omnibus bill. The president is understood to favor that plan.

Solution in Sight

Solution of the revenue problem which, as a result of the conference today, appears to be in sight, will go far, Mr. Kitchin believes, toward making an early adjournment of congress possible. He told the ways and means conferees during the meeting that nothing would prevent him putting the legislative program through the house so as to be ready to adjourn August 1. The senate, however, may delay adjournment by prolonged debate of some of the big measures. Secretary McAdoo's figures showed that the balance in the general fund, exclusive of disbursing officers' credits, probably would be $150,000,000 at the end of the present fiscal year and $13,500,000 at the end of the fiscal year of 1917. This estimate included expenditures likely to be made for the proposed increase in the standing army on the basis of the measure passed by Mr. McAdoo included liberal provisions for good roads, rural credits and expenditures to prevent and cope with floods. In making up the estimates the additional cost to the country of preparedness during the year 1917 was placed at from $20,000,000 to $100,000,000, a figure probably considerably less than appropriations to be authorized by congress but approximating the sum which actually would be spent during the year under the authorization.

An estimate compiled by Mr. McAdoo when retired congressmen last December showed a deficit of $62,000,000 in the general fund June 30, 1917. Instead of the $13,500,000 balance in the present estimate.

Made Miscalculation

The $62,000,000 deficit which seemed likely when congress convened was estimated on a basis that did not include provisions for good roads, rural credits or flood expenditures, all of which are included in the revised estimate. It was then figured that congress would have to raise $112,000,000 by additional legislation to bring the general fund balance up to the necessary $30,000,000 at the end of the next fiscal year.

Increases in treasury receipts have been most marked in the internal revenue department. Ordinary revenues placed at $27,000,000 for the fiscal year 1916 in the estimate of last December will approximate $30,000,000. Next year's ordinary revenue receipts were placed in the previous estimate at about $25,000,000. In the revised estimate at about the same figure as this year's. These revenues cover mainly the tax on distilled liquors and tobacco. Revenue from the income tax will go about $100,000,000 this year. Secretary McAdoo estimates that certainly above $105,000,000 next year. The previous estimate had placed this revenue at $85,000,000 and $100,000,000 respectively. The increase of nearly $15,000,000 in these two items alone this year is attributed to general prosperity, to strict enforcement of the internal revenue laws and the elimination of long-standing frauds in the payment of taxes on tobacco, whisky and oleomargarine, by which the government lost $10,000,000.

under Cleveland: Memphis by General Norflett and Tulsa by General Tate Brady. While General Herbert was speaking for Washington, General Boone of Louisiana, interrupted by asking the question "Are you going to have our wives and daughters in the same cars and stop at the same hotels with negroes at Washington?" The brought on pandemonium. Fifty delegates were on their feet attempting to speak at once. A personal encounter between Brady of Oklahoma and James H. Brown of Texas was narrowly avoided. The "thinning line" of the boys in gray" marched in review as the climax to the reunion. Cool, cloudy weather helped furnish the conditions for the occasion and comparatively few of the veterans were forced to withdraw from the line. It took two hours and twenty minutes for the procession to pass a given point.

Massed in front of the reviewing stand at Twentieth street and Fifth avenue, where General Bennett Young and his staff took their positions in line.

Klu Klux Again

Four automobiles loaded with Klu Klux in the fantastic garb of white robes and white peaked hats worn by that organization wound up the procession.

One of the most picturesque units of the old soldiers was a brigade of ten troops in full uniforms and carrying their old muskets with fixed bayonets. They were there "We're ready to fight now," they yelled as they passed in review. The forest cavalry in their faded yellow waist-length blouses also attracted attention.

Children There

Thousands of school children, all waving the stars and stripes and the stars and bars marched in the parade while other thousands lined the streets and as the bands came along playing favorite southern airs the children took up the songs. Virginia, Georgia, Alabama, Tennessee and Mississippi furnished probably the largest numbers of veterans, but West Virginia, North and South Carolina, Florida, Texas and Arkansas were well represented. The South Carolina flags with the palmetto on a white background attracted most attention.

Irvine S. Cobb, the humorist a delegate to the Sons of Confederate reunion, set the convention on fire today when he said, referring to the New York preparedness parade, which he addressed the day before coming to the reunion, "This parade strikes me as an answer to the shirtwaist boys and those other claps who take five lumps of sugar in their chocolate."

Shower Bryan

"Here in the town of New York we answered Mr. Bryan, Mr. William Jennings Bryan of Lincoln, Neb. We answered him and we answered Henry Ford of Detroit, Mich., to whom we are indebted for two standard and sterling jokes, one of them being Mr. Ford himself. We answered Claude Kitchin of North Carolina and numbers of his congressional playmates and we answered all of the rest of those notable gentlemen, members of the white rabbit brigade, knights of the stuffed dove, little brothers to the trod upon worm, conscript fathers of the little navy, dependent order of forgiveness, guinea pigs, blinded fellows of the gambling lambskin, humble advocates of the turned cheek."

Tonight scores of special trains are scattering the veterans and visitors to their homes in all sections of the south.

Veterans Pay Tulsa Tribute in Resolution

ment of Oklahoma, selected for their department president Mrs. Georgia Wallace. Mrs. Elita Quarry of this city also was selected treasurer and Mrs. Effie Wise secretary.

Held Meetings

The business of the day opened with meetings by all the organizations at their respective headquarters at 3 o'clock. It was at these meetings that the election of officers occurred and it was at this time that the members of the Grand Army of the Republic acted in accordance with the suggestions of the United Spanish War Veterans and jointly selected Bartlesville as the next place of encampment. There were several cities of the state in the race for this honor. Oklahoma City and Engleboth being the chief rivals of Bartlesville, but the offer of a $4,000 entertainment fund and a program including "regulation army grub" was too much for the champions of that city and they withdrew. For the third successive time the state encampment will come to an eastern Oklahoma city for the meeting of 1917.

After the election of officers and the adoption of resolutions, the organizations adjourned to take advantage of being present at the opening of the Tulsa rifle club's new rifle range. This was an invitation shoot and was open to the veterans and the public in general.

Visit Sand Springs

Several hundred took advantage of the cordial invitation extended by Charles Page to visit Sand Springs as his guest at 2:30 o'clock. This closed the regular sessions of the organizations during the encampment, but many of the veterans and affiliated organization members took advantage of the illustrated lecture at Convention hall last night by Charles Page. This lecture was illustrated by slides and motion pictures and was one of the most interesting and instructive features of the four-day sessions.

Before adjournment of the final session of the Grand Army of the Republic, resolutions favoring the repeal of the act of congress cutting off the pensions of widows of old soldiers who married after 1890 as pensioners were adopted, as was a resolution thanking Governor Williams for his cooperation with the organization. The G. A. R. also passed a resolution favoring national preparedness and asking for a state home for old Union soldiers.

Thanks Tulsa

One of the strongest resolutions adopted at the meeting was one thanking the citizens of Tulsa for their hospitable manner in which it threw open its arms, hearts and homes to the members of the order and a special mention was made of the officials of the city schools and the teachers for their services in making the preparedness parade one of the features of the encampment. The resolutions were signed by C. M. Rawling, D. M. Youngman, R. E. Wood, F. M. Cline and W. O. Mitchell.

Like Resolutions with reference to the manner in which Tulsa received the delegates were passed by all of the other organizations.

now numbers about 1,200. Reports from other points indicate that now there may be less than three thousand citizens of the United States in all Mexico.

What About Americans?

Whether the consular conference between themselves and with General Funston and other military leaders will consider the question of effecting removal of Americans still remaining in the bandit infested regions was not disclosed here officially.

Consul Letcher of Chihuahua City will come to Washington after the border conference to make a detailed report to the state department.

No important military development in Mexico or along the border was reported in Washington today.

Strike Spreads

State department dispatches indicated that the strike of Mexican railway employees was spreading. Shop employees at Piedras Negras were reported on strike preventing movement of trains from the south since May 14. It also was officially reported that railroad employees in Guadalajara struck May 16 and that Aguas Calientes was cut off from railroad communication by the strike.

The Mexican embassy tonight announced the receipt of dispatches from Mexico City, saying construction had begun on the railway line which will cross the states of Yucatan, Chiapas, Campeche and Tabasco from the Caribbean sea to the Pacific.

The advice also stated that the national monetary commission shortly would promulgate regulations to become effective June 1 to set forth the method and basis of settlement of obligations contracted for payment in metallic money for the issuance of the present paper currency; that offices had been opened in the capital where claimants to properties seized by the constitutional revolution may present their applications.

grudge to such an extent that it is believed to have preyed on his mind.

Tuesday afternoon Cates was standing in the Weikwa postoffice talking to Postmaster C. C. Wallace when Weighs pushed open the door and leveled a double-barreled shotgun at Cates. He had the appearance of a madman and both hummers of the gun were drawn back.

A bystander attempted to take the gun away from Weighs, but he kept Cates covered and whipped an automatic from his pocket and declared he would shoot the interloper if he made any attempt to disarm him. Cates grabbed the postmaster and jumped behind him using him for a shield and in this manner managed to reach the door and escape.

Took No Chances

Weighs left the postoffice and went to his shack at the edge of the town and Cates came to Tulsa at once and swore out the warrant for his arrest. Deputy Sheriff Reynolds was sent to Weikwa to bring Weighs back, but he received no answer when he called to him to give himself up. Learning of the threats made by the man Reynolds decided to ask assistance and returned.

Weighs had been dead several hours when his body was found and it is believed he was in the house when Reynolds demanded that he give himself up. It is thought he shot himself early yesterday morning.
